Motion Picture News In The Herald

This daily news feature of The Washington Herald is for the benefit of everybody interested in motion pictures.

Suggestions, comments, criticisms, inquiries, and questions invited. Address communications to Motion Picture Editor, Washington Herald.

"Red, the Mediator," or "A. D. T." Romance is one of the cleverest of the new releases.

Holworthy and his sweetheart, Miss Wetmore, have quarreled. Their exchange of messages in both acrimonious and frequent. After having carried half a dozen "rush" messages which fairly sizzled, "Red" Walsh, a messenger boy, begins to take an active interest in the affairs of the principals. Surprisingly, he reads the contents of the letters and telegrams. It is apparent to him that a misunderstanding has separated the young sweethearts, and "Red" unanimously elects himself to the post of mediator.

He tells Holworthy that Miss Wetmore has sent for him to come to her at once in order that they may straighten out their difficulties. Holworthy, however, meets with a cold reception. On his way back to the district telegraph office where he is employed, "Red" is run down and fatally injured. Upon being restored temporarily to consciousness in the hospital he asks that his two friends, Miss Wetmore and Holworthy, come to see him.

Special Children's Matinee, Keystone comedy, today, Colonial, 927 Pa. ave.—Adv.

"The Old Curiosity Shop," another of the famous stories of Charles Dickens, is soon to be produced in "movies" by the American Company.

An event as important in motion picture circles as was the reunion of the famous team of comedians, Weber and Fields, in theatrical circles, is the coming appearance together for the first time in two years of Mabel Normand and Mack Sennett, now playing in Keystone comedies, which reach the public through the Mutual program. Miss Normand and Mr. Sennett played opposite each other in the old Biograph comedies. Then Sennett went to the Keystone company and forsook the screen to become managing director of that concern. But now he feels that uncontrollable impulse to be an actor once more, so again he will be seen opposite Miss Normand. The first motion picture in which the popular pair will be seen together will be a Keystone comedy called "We Should Worry."

EXPLORER TELLS OF BATTLE WITH DEATH

Commander Evans Recounts Experiences on Capt. Scott's Dash for South Pole.

EXHIBITS HIS OWN DIARY

The story of how Capt. Robert Falcon Scott and three companions perished on their return from the south pole was told by Comdr. E. R. G. Evans, of the royal British navy, before the National Geographic Society at the New Masonic Temple yesterday afternoon and evening.

The explorer for the first time exhibited his own diary, which, while lacking the grace that word pictures of Scott's diary, nevertheless is filled with passages that stir the blood and grip the imagination. There for eight days he hovered between life and death, now conscious, now oblivious, to his suffering, Comdr. Evans speaks like a sailor, simply, directly, and every word he says counts. He has a highly emotional face, one minute expressing tender pity for what has been called the greatest tragedy of polar history, and the next showing the grim determination as he speaks of the battle with death.

Of medium stature and sturdy build, Comdr. Evans is clean-shaven, dark-haired, and wears civilian clothes with a grace that is rare with men who follow the sea. He has steel blue eyes that are as clear as the sea. The audience followed every word of the sturdy explorer with rapt attention as he told of the struggles and hardships of the members of the expedition and the heroism and self-sacrifice of Capt. Scott.

Among those who heard Commander Evans' lecture were the Misses Eleanor and Margaret Wilson, daughters of the President. The officer is being entertained at the British Embassy as the guest of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador.

MME. CARRENO PLEASES IN PIANO RECITAL

Audience Shows Appreciation of Her Art by Demands for Encores.

Mme. Carreno, pianist, who appeared in recital at the New National Theater yesterday afternoon, has long since won her way into the affections of the public as a genuine artist. She is especially valued by the musician, who likes to have his beloved composer, whoever they may be, interpreted simply, veraciously, and intelligently, instead of having the composer plus an infusion of the personality of the performer. Mme. Carreno is mistress of many gradations of tone from the big many to the faintest pianissimo.

The program opened with Beethoven's "Sonata, Appassionata," which was followed by a Chopin group: Nocturne, Op. 9, Etude in A flat, C sharp minor Waltz, and Etude in C minor. Then came the "Les Orientales" of MacDowell, Rubinstein's "Barcarolle in G Major," and the "March Militaire," of Schubert, arranged by Taubert. The last number, the prelude movement of the Beethoven sonata, the Ballade of Chopin and the Etude of Schumann, gave Mme. Carreno ample opportunity for brilliant technical triumphs.

The MacDowell number afforded scope for some fine graphic work as well as varied coloring. Mme. Carreno's most thoughtful and masterly work was done in the beautiful movement of the "Appassionata," and the MacDowell Suite.

After the Chopin group Mme. Carreno was recalled and tossed off with a charming lightness the most popular of the Chopin etudes. At the end of the performance Mme. Carreno played the "Kleine Walte," one of her own compositions.

VICE PRESIDENT IS SEXAGENARIAN TODAY

Mr. Marshall to Celebrate Sixtieth Birthday as Guest at Hot Springs, Va.

Vice President Marshall will be sixty years old today. He will observe the event as a guest of friends at Hot Springs, Va. The Vice President left Washington yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Marshall, for the week-end visit at Hot Springs, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Elder, of Indianapolis.

The Vice President was given a surprise while enjoying his dinner at the Shoreham last night, when Leon, the maître d'hôtel, presented him with a beautiful birthday cake, bearing his name, dates and sixty lighted candles.

Mr. Marshall has succeeded in checking a plan to give him a cane. Senator Martine, of New Jersey, thought it would be a fine thing to give the Vice President a present of a rosewood cane with gold finishings and collected $1 contributions from seventy-five Senators.

Mr. Marshall heard of the plan and had it called off.

Mr. Marshall was born in Wabash County, Indiana, a short distance from Columbia City, which was his home at the time he was elected to his first office, governor of Indiana. He is a graduate of Wabash College, in Indiana, and has the degree of doctor of laws from his alma mater, as well as from Notre Dame University, University of Pennsylvania, and the University of North Carolina.

Before his election as governor of Indiana, the Vice President practiced law for thirty-three years at Columbia City, a town of 2,500 inhabitants, a short distance from Fort Wayne. He did not marry until after he was forty.

NEW HAVEN CASE DEADLOCKED

Little Progress Made in Nine-hour Conference on Disolution.

For nearly nine hours yesterday representatives of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad and the Department of Justice discussed salient features of the pending dissolution suit. At the end of that time it was admitted little progress had been made.

From high authority it was learned the Department of Justice is growing weary of arguments advanced over and over again by the attorneys for the railroad, who are stalling for time.

It was hinted that if the New Haven men do not soon advance more advanced reasons for a delay in selling out their stock ownership in the Boston and Maine, the department will file a brief with the Supreme Court of the United States and will fight the case to the last inch.

There will be another conference today.

ART CONNOISSEUR DIES.

and T. F. Hinkel, of Baltimore, during a hearing on the bill.

"I am seeking a method to assure minority stockholders of member banks in the new Federal reserve system of representation on boards of directors," said Senator Pommeroy, in explanation of his bill for cumulative system of voting. Under this a shareholder entitled to one vote for each of seven directors, for instance, could cast seven votes for one director, or divide his seven votes as he wished.

A recommendation that small State and private banks be given the redoubtable privileges created by the new currency act, in order that these banks may extend greater accommodations to rural communities is included in a report of the United States Rural Credits Commission presented in the Senate. The commission does not propose a specific bill, but leaves that to the Banking and Currency Committees of Congress.

Bringing to a close its hearings on the La Follette seamen's bill yesterday the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee listened to attacks on various features of the measure from Representative Humphrey, of Washington, and by Edward C. Plummer, of Boston, representing the Atlantic Carriers' Association. Both suggested that the sailors' union would be the chief gainer by the bill's adoption.

A demand that the fixing of retail prices be permitted to manufacturers and wholesalers was made to the House Interstate Commerce Committee by a delegation representing retail merchants throughout the country. The speakers were John A. Green, of Cleveland, secretary of the National Association of Retail Grocers; S. Westfield, of Chicago; George W. Sawkins, of Toledo, and Charles G. Ziel, of St. Louis.
